Khabbar Follies

In this section, Khabbar looks into the Konkani community and anything and everything that is Konkani from a Konkani point of view. The names will never be published but geographic location will be identified in general terms.

When it comes to the “Kwiz” section, Khabbar is probably the undefeated champion for a long time that I can remember! Lots of people tell me that they solve the puzzle but do not send in the solution (too lazy or they forget !?!) Well, I think it is a lame excuse and I’ll not buy that. Then I get letters from some others who send in the correct solutions and something more. Here are a few of them that I received for the last quarter’s quiz (Vol. XXVI No.1):

This family from TX who has NEVER solved a single puzzle in the past, happens to solve the last quarter’s quiz and sends in the correct solution with this note, “Here’s the answer to your quiz (Piece of cake, man). Try giving little bit harder one next time!”

This family from NY sends in the correct solution to last quarter’s quiz with the following note, “If this Konkani father had any daughters, they would be entitled to a piece of the property too, right?”

This family from VA really solves most of the puzzles correctly but has been quiet for sometime. Moreover had given a wrong solution to the quiz that appeared in Khabbar Vol. XXV No. 4. When challenged, there came his correct solution to last quarter’s quiz with the following note:

Dear Vasanthmaam,

What can I say - you win some, you lose some! :-) But you won’t deny that my overall record has been pretty good - I think I answered all your kwizzes one year and I’ve answered at least one correctly every year! Let’s hope this correct solution from me is the beginning of a good trend.

Regards,

Dear Konkani family,

I hope all is well with you and your family.

This issue of Khabbar has been mailed to ALL families that have paid dues at least once since 1991. The on-line version of Khabbar, ekhabbar, will be on the web a quarter after the hard copies have been mailed. This issue has not been mailed to families that have specifically indicated that they will access ekhabbar. The numbers on the mailing label clearly indicate the year/s the dues for Khabbar has been received since 1991 and if there is any error, please, let me know.

For the dues of $15.00 a year, you get:
- Four issues of the Khabbar,
- Annual Mailing List and
- Discounted advertisement rates.

The Khabbar Mailing List is a prized possession of our community and please help me to keep it up-to-date. Send names and addresses of Konkani families that are not in the list to P. O. Box 222, Lake Jackson, TX 77566-0222, or email khabbar@hotmail.com and rest be assured that I will “khabbarize” them!

The Konkani Youth are busy preparing for their second convention in July 2003 (from 4th thru 6th) in Austin, TX and response has been good. Certainly this will unite all the North American Konkani youngsters. I encourage ALL Konkani youth to get involved. Also, appeal to all Konkani families to support our youngsters by giving moral and financial support.

EDITORIAL

With their logo & theme contest over and a beautiful venue, the Konkani Sammelan 2004 will be the best event ever! And looks like the venue for the 2006 Sammelan is already set! CAN you guess where the 2006 Sammelan venue is!!!

Most of the articles and news item come voluntarily on a regularly basis. If you send them via email (khabbar@hotmail.com), it makes the editing job much easy.

Thanks to Smt. Radha Golikeri of Houston, TX for contributing articles in the new section “Dalithoy for Konkani Soul”. I am really hoping more people contribute articles to this section.

Also, Khabbar is glad to revive the “Khabbar from Kular” section with contribution from Basti Vaman Shenoy, President, Konkani Bhas Ani Sanskriti Pratistan, to keep us abreast about all the Konkani happenings back home.

The past quarter must have brought the happiest news to all the Konkanis worldwide. Government of India showered the most prestigious awards of Padma Vibhushan & Padmashri to Sri. T. V. R. Shenoy of Delhi and eminent book seller Narayan Shanbhag of Mumbai respectively. Khabbar extends the warmest greetings to the winners.

Also, I welcome the newly formed umbrella organization Vishwa Saraswath Federation (VSF) which will ensure that all Saraswaths will unite under the banner of VSF leaving behind the barrier of time and distance and facilitate the need for a common platform.

Also, back in India, the Konkani spirit is also very much alive. Plans are there for a Rs. 4 crore project, “Vishwa Konkani Kendra” (VKK) to revive the Konkani literature and culture by Konkani Bhas Ani Sanskriti Pratistan. I hope North American Konkanis will participate in these two great undertakings (VSF and VKK) by donating generously.

On the Quiz front, Khabbar has remained as an undefeated champion for a long time! It is really a pity to see only a handful few got the correct solution to the last quarter’s quiz!! Let us see how many of you will be able to solve this quarter’s quiz.

Khabbar will always publish appeals for charity free of charge but cannot collect money on behalf of any charity. Families are encouraged to send the money directly to the concerned charities. It is amazing to see so many appeals come to Khabbar on a regular basis. Khabbar firmly believes in helping our people whether it is in India or here. Please, extend your help to the maximum extent.

Hope peace & tranquility prevails on earth. Have a great summer.

Dear Vasantmaam,

Just today, we logged on to the web connection http://www.ece.rice.edu/~vijaypai/photos/ mentioned in an item in the latest issue of Khabbar (Vol. XXVI No.1). Looking at so many beautiful, clear, color photos was an exhilarating experience. Pictures do make a greater impression on the mind, and convey the aspects of the Konkani society and ceremonies so effectively. The experience is rich indeed.

May we request you, through Khabbar, to encourage more such web connections for photo presentations from the members of the Konkani community? The facility, we feel, will be appreciated by the readers.

Thank You,
Yash, Anjali & Shilpa Rao,
Chandler, AZ

Dear Vasant,

I wonder if you can spread the word to the Konkanis of Southern California, before it becomes too late because the camp is nearly full. Many of you are interested in performing during the 2004 camp. Please contact Shivadev and Lata Udbhayakar.

Devu Baren Koro,

Dear Vasantmaam,

In the past, our KASC newsletters were always sent after the publication of 'Khabbar', so news items were old by the time the next issue of 'Khabbar' came. Therefore, I decided to update you with any hoon khabbar from Southern California, before it becomes “thanda khabbar”.

On behalf of Chairman and Trustees of Konkani Language and Cultural Foundation (Konkani Bhas Ani Sanskriti Pratistan), I wholeheartedly say "DEVU BAREN KORO" to you for taking very keen interest in the Mega Project "World Konkani Centre-Vishwa Konkani Kendra (VKK)."

The Trustees have passed a Resolution authorizing Dr. Ramadas Kamath of Apple Valley, CA and Mr. Ganapathi Shenoy of Las Vegas, NV to form a Committee in North America to give information about the World Konkani Centre project to the North American Konkani friends and also to give publicity to the project at various quarters wherever possible. VKK has also authorized them to receive, collect monies from the donors and trusts, etc. by way of Cheques and Bank Drafts in the name of the Foundation.

You may also give/send VKK Brochures to your friends. Whenever some good work commences here, we will pass on the information you.

You may kindly suggest some more names from various States in U.S.A. to be included in the Committee so that the World Konkani Centre (WKC) will get large number of Konkani friends and also to give publicity to the project at various quarters wherever possible. VKK has also authorized them to receive, collect monies from the donors and trusts, etc. by way of Cheques and Bank Drafts in the name of the Foundation.

We have already opened W.K.C. Website www.vishwakonkani.org .

Devu Baren Koro,

Yours faithfully,
Basti Vaman Shenoy

Konkani Happenings:

The Konkani Association of California (KAOCA) held their annual Yugadi function on Saturday April 5th 2003 at the Hindu Temple, Sunnyvale, CA from 4:00 - 10:00 PM.
The Konkani Association of Southern California (KASC), sponsors of the 2004 Konkani Sammelan, held their annual Yugadi function on Sunday April 20th at the City of Arcadia Recreation Center.

The program began with snacks, social hour, invocation, and Aarti. The next item was Jaidev Chandavarkar singing a hymn in praise of Lord Ganesh. Following this, Vivek Ullal played a film song and a popular Bhajan Vaishnava Janato tene kahiye with classical touches and interludes, ably accompanied on tabla by Ajay Ullal. The following item was children’s variety entertainment, during which Galen and Makana Krulce played melodious tunes on the piano, and Chetan Bhat gave a very hilarious and interesting talk in Konkani, giving his fondness for ulonche vishayu. Ravi Joshi sang the Konkani translation with tune of the song from the film, Padosan, “Mere samane wale khidki pe”, bringing the entire crowd down in stitches, with laughter. He also sang another Hindi film song. Mohini Kamath recited her beautiful Konkani poem, Yeyati, Yeyati, amgele gavanka, as an invitation to all Konkanis to attend the 5th Konkani Convention (Konkani Sammelan) to be held in Garden Grove, California in July 2004. The chairpersons of various committees of the Sammelan, briefly described the activity in their committees, and Mohan Kamath, Vice-President of the Executive Committee of the Sammelan, presented an imaginative and excellent Powerpoint slide show about the Sammelan, giving everyone a good perspective about the most updated developments. Jaidev Chandavarkar presented a funny mimicry item Bhadrakol from Bengal, for which he dressed in traditional Bengali attire and recited a famous English poem with Bengali accent, and a more serious patriotic Bengali poem by Dwijendra Roy, composed in 1940’s. The election for KASC Committee slate of office-bearers was held, and the committee members were elected unopposed by a unanimous vote (see below for details). The last item was a hat trick (a term used in cricket) by Radhika Hattiangadi, where she told the story of a married couple (Jyoti and Vivek Ullal) by a medley of famous Hindi film tunes and gazals. She had made a similar presentation at the couple’s surprise silver wedding anniversary in 2000, and was requested an en core by several individuals. She sang all the songs effortlessly, with a beautiful melodious voice, and interspersed with funny comments and similes in chaste Konkani. This item was also a competition in name that movie contest. The master of ceremonies was Vikram Hattiangadi, who did a very good job. The delicious snacks and dinner was catered by Rajan Radhakrishnan of Madras Pavilion, in Houston, TX, who had catered the food for the 2002 Konkani Sammelan. Beena and Aravind Shenoy and their team of volunteers ably managed the serving and distribution of the food, and also the arrangement and planning of snacks and dinner. We thank the outgoing and incoming Committee members, performers, volunteers, and the audience. Special thanks to Mohini Kamath for delicious madgane as usual, and Rajan and his two cooks who came all the way from Texas to prepare delicious Konkani food.

NEW DELHI 3rd Apr 03:

His Holiness Srimad Sudhindra Thirtha Swamiji, Mathadhipathi of Sri Kashi Math Samsthan Varanasi conferred Saraswath Prathibha Puraskar to eminent journalist Padma Vibhushan T. V. R. Shenoy of Delhi and eminent book seller Padmashri Narayan Shanbhag of Mumbai in a ceremony organized by Gowd Saraswath Samaj New Delhi on behalf of Vishwa Saraswath Federation (VSF) for excelling in their own field of work. Ceremony was organized at Saraswath Sanskriti Bhavan, New Rajinder Nagar. Incidentally both the luminaries received Padma award on the very same day from the President of India.

Saraswath Prathibha Puraskar is the first of its kind introduced by VSF to acknowledge the contribution done by the Saraswaths to the Nation and the Society. "It is a good beginning that both the Saraswaths who received this award today are from the field of knowledge sharing which is the boon of Goddess Saraswathi" said Colonel Kini, Convener, VSF. He updated the gathering about the activities of VSF on social issues and need for the Saraswath Bhavan in Delhi and sought the blessings of Swamiji for the growth of VSF.

Saraswath Prathibha Puraskar to T. V. R. Shenoy and Narayan Shanbhag

Both Shenoy and Shanbhag clarified to the people that it is the Goddess Saraswathi who makes other worldly things to flow. Goddess Lakshmi comes behind if one professes the Saraswathi. Shanbhag who came to Mumbai with mere Rs 450 in his heydays is now a well-accredited man, in the book selling. His rare skill unlike other book venders is that he reads the book and satisfies himself before it is bought for selling. Shenoy had all praise to Shanbhag who made him such a learned person today. It is the knowledge, which can make a person good, and then the Nation can become a knowledge society both the awardees reiterated.

Swamiji in their ashirvachana blessings stressed the need for unified approach for the upliftment of Saraswaths. Selfless and dedicated efforts only will yield results that have the blessings of God. Getting Honor to an individual is showering God's grace on him. We should honor them and respect them then Almighty also becomes very happy. It is a testimony that two of the Saraswath's getting Nation's highest civilian award immediately after the formation of VSF shows that a macro community "Saraswaths" are being identified for their National contribution and it is boon to Saraswaths. Though we are micro community our efforts and contribution to the world, Nation and the society should be of macro level. Lauding the service done by both the luminaries Shenoy and Shanbhag, Swamiji said knowledge sharing with masses from one's soul is a purified approach with selfless service, which has resulted in getting these awards. A journalist can change the Nation and also harm the nation. Changing the Nation for development and prosperity of human being is what these awardees have done for which we are proud. One gets their positions based on their qualification. One should perform and act with "Manasa, Vacha, Karmana" then the purity flows and we can call them "Sathpurusha".

Local Volunteer Wins National Title “Woman of the Year”

As published by The Leukemia & Lymphoma Society

Many people feel deep concern when they hear about someone battling a serious illness like blood cancer. Some people turn their concern into action. Maya Shenoy of Charlotte put her compassion to work in this community to raise hundreds of thousands of dollars to fund researchers working to find cures for leukemia, lymphoma, Hodgkin and non-Hodgkin lymphoma and myeloma.

The Leukemia & Lymphoma Society recently acclaimed Maya Shenoy The 2002 National Woman of the Year. As the nation’s top woman fundraiser Mrs. Shenoy was recognized in a full-page ad in the national edition of USA Today on February 5, 2003.

In a profile during Thanksgiving in the Charlotte Observer she pronounced her personal motto as, “Community, Compassion, and Commitment.” As a volunteer fundraiser, she has raised more than two million dollars for non-profit organizations. Maya Shenoy has also dedicated countless hours to serve many organizations, serving as President of the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation, American Cancer Society, American Heart Association, and Mecklenburg County Medical Society Alliance in Charlotte, as well as serving as the host for the 2001 National Meeting of the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society of America in Charlotte. Maya serves on the local and/or national boards of several non-profit organizations. She was nominated a member of the Illinois State University Foundation Board of Directors in 2002. Maya Shenoy is currently a National Trustee For The Leukemia and Lymphoma Society of America.

In 1944 the deVillier Family donated a $1,000 in honor of their son, 16-year-old Robbie deVilliers, who was diagnosed with acute leukemia. His doctors at the New York Hospital had done all they could. There was no effective treatment; not even a clear idea of the cause. One thing the doctors did know: leukemia killed quickly, brutally, inevitable. Robbie died in October, just three months after his diagnosis. As a memorial to his brief life, his parents established a foundation to support scientific research into their son’s diagnosis. Today that legacy lives on through the Leukemia & Lymphoma Society and all cancer survivors. They are living proof that you can make a difference. In 1999, the Society celebrated our 50th Anniversary. The progress we’ve made during that time in the fight against leukemia and blood related cancers is slow but sure. In 1949 less than 4% of children diagnosed with leukemia would survive, today survival rates are over 80%. And with continued support we hope to see leukemia relegated to the history books in the near future.

By: K. P. S. Kamath, M. D.
Psychiatrist in private practice in Cape Girardeau, Missouri

Chapter Three:

Lord Krishna started giving Arjuna Gitopadesha only after the latter said to him: Gita: 2: 7, 8: "My will is paralyzed, and I am utterly confused. Tell me which is better path for me. Let me be your disciple. I have fallen at your feet; give me instruction. What can overcome a sorrow that saps all my vitality? Even power over men and gods or wealth of an empire seems empty." His Mind became disconnected from his Intellect due to grief. He now needed the benefit of Lord Krishna's Intellect to make that connection. Make a note here that Lord Krishna did not give Arjuna unsolicited advice (U.A). He did not open his mouth till he knew Arjuna was ready to accept his advice. Accordingly, Krishna warned Arjuna at the end of Gita 18: 67, 68: "Do not share this wisdom with anyone who lacks in devotion or self control, and who lacks the desire to learn!"

To Arjuna's credit, he did not blindly accept Krishna's advice. He listened closely to Krishna and questioned him many times to clarify his own recurring doubts: Gita 3: 1: "Why do you urge me to engage in this ghastly fight if You think Intelligence is better than selfish work?"

In my everyday practice as a psychiatrist, I have found that only those people who sought counseling with an open mind and desire to change got well. These people had already admitted to themselves that their Mind was in distress and their Intellect was clouded. Now they needed the benefit of the Intellect (experience, insight, knowledge and wisdom) of the psychiatrist to clear the cloud in their Mind. When we consult lawyers, accountants and doctors, we are, in effect, using their Intellect to solve our life problems in return for a fee (sacrifice). People who go to them with an attitude 'Who are you to tell me what to do? What makes you think you know more than I do?' don’t benefit from the advice given. This was Duryodhana’s attitude.

We studied in the previous chapter how actual loss of or fear of losing people or material things is at the root of all stress. Let us now study how Gita tackles these issues.
When Arjuna was going through anticipatory grief -for no one had died as yet- Lord Krishna convinced him in Gita 2: 11-20 that when people die it is just the body that dies, not the Soul, and so it is meaningless to grieve over death. Gita 2: 21: Just as we discard old clothes and put on new, the Soul enters into a new body. A truly enlightened person who knows the true nature of Soul and body, therefore, neither grieves nor feels the need to grieve. This revelation and insight neutralized Arjuna's grief and cleared his thinking. Lesser mortals like us who are yet to be thus enlightened, however, will have no choice but to go through the grieving process after losing someone or something we love. As for the sin of killing those he worshipped all his life, Lord Krishna reminds Arjuna that it would be a greater sin not to perform his duty (dharma) as a Kshatriya: Gita: 2: 33. Besides, fighting a righteous war with purity of heart, without considering loss or gain, happiness or distress will incur no sin: Gita: 2: 38 These revelations neutralized Arjuna's guilt and fear of sinfulness. His will to fight was re-energized once these mental blocks were removed by Lord Krishna.

FEAR OF LOSS: How can one overcome fear of loss, which is at the root of most stress we experience in life? Behind life problems related to job, money, family, temple, relationship, etc., there lurks the fear of losing someone or something we are attached to. More the attachment, more the fear, which means more stress. How, then, can we reduce this fear in our daily lives? Gita's advice is simple: Train yourself to reduce your attachments to people and material things. Practice constantly to eliminate selfish desire for such attachments from your Mind. Get rid of greed. Learn to let go and let God: Gita: 2: 49: "Seek refuge in the attitude of detachment and raise your spiritual awareness. Actions motivated by selfish desire make one miserable." Now, take any life-problem you feel trapped in and try to solve it. You will soon realize that you must give up something first: money, time, position, security, relationship- in order to achieve a lasting solution. People who feel trapped in a life problem, say, marriage problem or job problem are those who are unwilling to give up their attachments to at least one of the following: security, pride, hate, greed, sick relationship. Willingness and ability to renounce liberates one from fear of loss.

What are the consequences of excessive attachment? Gita 2: 62, 63: "When you keep thinking about sense objects (people, money, etc.), attachment comes. Excessive attachment breeds selfish desire, the lust of possession that burns to anger. Anger clouds the judgment; you can no longer learn from past mistakes (you lose contact with your wisdom). You lose the power to choose between what is wise and what is unwise (your judgment is clouded); and your life is an utter waste."

Here we should remember how Dritharastra’s excessive attachment to his evil natured son, Duryodhana, blinded him to his faults and led to the downfall and destruction of his entire progeny. Most parent-child problems in Indian families are rooted in excessive attachment of parents to their (even grownup) children resulting in controlling behavior on the part of parents, and resentment and rebellion on the part of children. Marital problems leading to divorce in young couple are more often than not due to constant interference by parents of the boy (rarely by girl's parents) who have difficulty letting go of their grown up boy (or girl).

Is it easy to control one’s Senses? Lord Krishna admits it is not easy to control one’s Senses nor the tendency of the Mind to get attached: Gita: 2: 60: "The Senses are so strong and impetuous, O Arjuna, that they forcibly carry away the Mind even of a man of discrimination who is endeavoring to control them." Gita: 2: 67: "As a boat on the water is swept away by a strong wind, even so one’s fixation on Senses and Sense Objects could carry away his Intellect (better judgment, leading to serious stress )."

So, what is Gita's advice for stress-prevention in the long run? Simple: Gradually reduce your attachments to sense objects (material things and people); learn to enjoy your wealth and material comforts in a detached manner ("If I have it, fine; If I don't have it, I will manage without it"); control your senses by regulated principles of Jnana yoga, Karma yoga and Bhakti yoga, which we will study later. You don't have to close the gates (Senses) completely. Just install turnstiles on them. Then shift the focus of the Mind (zone #3) from material things (zone # 5) to the Intellect (zone # 2), the seat of wisdom, and to the Soul (zone # 1), the seat of eternal peace and absolute tranquility. Read Gita 2: 61, 64-72. Lord Krishna says repeatedly that with will power and practice one could achieve this goal. Read Gita 6: 18-28.

Does Gita recommend us to become a sanyasi? Not at all. Simply reducing our attachments, and eliminating weaknesses such as lust, greed, anger, hate, selfish motive in our deeds, etc. is enough to reduce stress and bring peace of mind. In addition, regularly fixing one's mind in deep meditation on the Atman (Jnana yoga): serving humanity without selfish motive (doing selfless volunteer work, for example) (Karma yoga); always worshipping God with selfless devotion (Bhakti yoga) also brings peace and tranquility. One path is not exclusive of the others. All three paths lead to Self-realization, a point wherein the Mind merges with Atman (Self). When this happens, we are liberated from the karma phala of our misdeeds. Stress in our everyday life begins to decline rapidly.

Here is an old story that illustrates Gita's message succinctly: A sanyasi gave up all attachments, meditated till he achieved samadhi and went to heaven upon his death. There he saw, among other great souls, a prostitute he knew of back on earth. Unhappy about his being equated with a sinful prostitute who lived a full life, the sadhu complained to God, "Lord, how could you grant heaven to this sinner? I had to sacrifice everything life had to offer to get here." God replied, "It was her Dharma to make her living as a prostitute. She served her clients with a great deal of devotion and yet she was utterly detached from any sense enjoyment. Even while engaged in her "sinful acts", her pure mind was unshakably fixed on Me. You sanyasi, on the contrary, sat in front of the temple meditating on Me, but your eyes were always on her when she came to the temple to worship Me!"

Gita: 2: 65, 66: "For one so situated (senses under control and mind fixed on Soul), miseries of material life exist no longer; in such a happy state, one’s Intellect is steady. One whose Mind is not in touch with his inner Intellect, it is not at peace. When one has no peace of mind (when one is stressed), he can not enjoy happiness." The message is: While you are controlling the Five Gates (Senses), redirect your focus and energy on to the inner compound and the temple, and get in touch with your wisdom, moral values and divinity.

What happens if we cannot control our Senses and if we get too attached to Sense Objects? Gita: 2: 44 : "In the minds of those who are too attached to sense enjoyment and material opulence, and who are bewildered by such things, the resolute determination for devotional service to the Lord does not take place." What happens to people who experience Lust (selfish desire) due to excessive attachment? Gita: 16: 21: "Lust, Anger and Greed represent three gates leading down to hell (on earth)."

So, how does one deal with everyday hassles of life? Gita: 2: 14, 15: "When Senses contact Sense Objects, a person experiences cold or heat, happiness or distress. These experiences are fleeting like summer and winter seasons. Bear with them, O scion of Bharata, and learn to tolerate them without being upset (stressed). Those who are the same in pleasure and pain are truly wise and fit for immortality and liberation." Gita: 2: 56: "One who acquires the ability to keep his mind unperturbed in happiness or distress is called Stithaprajnya. "This person has trained himself to become immune from the effects of loss or threatened loss.

Gita does not recommend one to give up his wealth, power, status, etc. Gita says that selfish desire (kama) to have these by hook or by crook is bad. Gita says: "Renounce and enjoy life!" Let me give a true example of this in real life: When a brother of mine admired an expensive car of a rich friend, this truly liberated businessman’s response was this: He looked away from his Mercedes, pointed his left arm toward it, made gestures of futility with his fingers, and said disdainfully, "Isn't this just a false prestige thing?" His attitude was one of utter detachment: ‘If I have it, fine. If I don’t have it, that is fine too. It is all a prop that I need to project the image of being "successful" in this business world I live in.’ This man, contrary to all appearances, is a true yogi.

FIRST-EVER REPORT ON SOUTH ASIAN AMERICAN HEALTH
CALLS FOR MORE RESEARCH, BETTER DATA

Published by the South Asian Public Health Association (SAPHA), the Brown Paper is the first national initiative to evaluate and summarize existing knowledge about several key health indicators for South Asian Americans. The report focuses primarily on South Asians living in the US, as well Diasporic communities that have lived for several generations in other regions of the world, such as the Caribbean & the African continent. South Asians have origins in Bangladesh, Bhutan, India, Maldives, Nepal, Pakistan, & Sri Lanka.

"The two year effort to produce this document is only the first step in establishing an agenda for the health of South Asian communities," explains Abhijit Ghosh, co-chairperson of SAPHA’s Board of Directors.

The Brown Paper consists of 13 chapters: A Socio-Demographic Profile; Youth Health; Women's Health; Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender Health; Elderly Health; Cancer; Cardiovascular Disease; Diabetes; HIV/AIDS; Intimate Partner Violence; Mental Health; Nutrition; and Substance Abuse. The publication also includes a comprehensive Resource Guide, which lists over 100 resources and agencies that provide services to South Asians across the United States.

Key findings revealed in the Brown Paper:
- Leading cause of mortality is cardiovascular disease; heart disease has a higher prevalence in Asian Indians than other Asians and non-Hispanic whites.
- Top chronic illness concerns are obesity, diabetes, and high blood pressure.
- When compared to white children, Asian American children are 2-3 times more likely to lack a usual source of health care services and continuity of care.
- Women who have emigrated to the US from India are more likely to deliver low birth weight infants than white women and women in other ethnic groups, although they receive first trimester prenatal care at about the same rate as white women.
- In both the intimate partner violence and HIV/AIDS chapters, authors note that the stigma associated with seeking assistance often deters South Asians from accessing services.
According to Ushma Upadhyay, co-editor of the Brown Paper and a member of SAPHA's Board of Directors, "All too often, South Asians are seen as a model minority, which prevents understanding and further research into their health issues. For instance, as long as people believe that substance abuse or HIV has not touched this community, the longer it will take for South Asians battling 'stigmatized' illnesses to seek and get assistance."

Approximately 2 million people of South Asian origin live in the United States, according to year 2000 Census data—a growth rate of 106% over the last ten years. Significant increases in population, coupled with wide diversity within the South Asian community, present a challenge for health care providers to respond to both community and individual needs adequately.

Additional statistics of note:

- Asian Indians stand 12th in national poverty level rankings.
- South Asian uninsurance rate is 21% (national average is 18%).
- 25% of Asian Indians have limited English proficiency, which means they do not speak English well.
- Asian Indian elderly comprise 10% of the Asian Indian population.

"This new report finally brings together literature from all over the world to help us understand the health needs of this rapidly growing group of Americans. Health care providers, researchers, and policymakers will be better able to provide care and solutions to health disparities among South Asians. Gaps in available data can be better addressed by researchers," explains chapter author Susan L. Ivey, MD, MHSA, a key researcher in cardiovascular disease among South Asians. Academic researchers, health care providers, advocates, and activists throughout the US have contributed to planning and development of the Brown Paper. Based on research and analyses of each topic, the authors have made recommendations for policymakers, health and human service providers, and public health advocates.

Next Steps:

As the next step, SAPHA will distribute the Brown Paper to key individuals and decision-makers in the field of public health and public policy. SAPHA will also build partnerships with community-based organizations throughout the US in an effort to increase awareness on issues of South Asian American health, foster dialogue on issues raised by the Brown Paper, and explore ways in which communities can identify innovative ways to address their health needs and empower themselves through healthy living.

ABOUT SAPHA: Recognizing the importance of addressing the health and well-being of South Asian communities, a group of public health professionals and students in the United States founded SAPHA in 1999, creating an on-line community. By 2002, SAPHA formed its Board of Directors, has grown to over 400 on-line members, and hosts activities and events throughout the nation. To further its mission, the South Asian Public Health Association seeks to: (1) Provide a forum for mentorship, dialogue and resource-sharing among public health professionals working with South Asian communities; (2) Advance the leadership, networking and professional development of South Asian public health professionals; (3) Raise awareness of health risks and encourage healthy behavior among South Asians; (4) Increase awareness of the value of culturally-appropriate services for South Asians in the United States; and (5) Encourage and support research and academic communities interested in South Asian health issues.

AMBAKKA TAKES THEM FOR A RIDE

By Smt. Radha Golikeri, Houston, Texas

Ambakka loved traveling. It was an annual ritual with her to spend summer vacation at Mangalore where her sister and her family lived. Ambakka and her children enjoyed the change immensely and on her return to Bombay, she would go into ecstasy while narrating how delightfully they spent the holidays. She was very proud of Mangalore where she grew up. She perceived every aspect of Mangalore as superb. She used her enormous vocabulary of exquisite adjectives precisely while describing the beauty and bounty of Mangalore. She would say, salubrious climate, clean water, luscious mangoes, fleshy breadfruit (Jeeve Kadgi), non irritant elephant ear leaves (Patrado Paan), crunchy cashew nut macaroons, beautiful temples, imposing St. Aloysius College - to name a few things.

Her two nephews, 9 and 11 years old, heard the account time and again and were all agog. They decided to join Ambakka on her next trip. Ambakka happily agreed to take them with her.
Soon the month of May arrived and as planned the party of 7, Ambakka and 6 children reached Mangalore. Mhaantu was eager to take all the guests around Mangalore before the vagaries of rain outdid his schedule of sight seeing. There were lots of places to be seen. The locations were spread over from one end of town to the other. In those days there was no convenient public transportation like bus or taxi. The only conveyance was jhatka. It is a horse drawn cart with a capacity of 6 to 7 riders. Mhaantu hired Manja's jhatka for the grand tour. As arranged, Manja was ready at the door on the dot of time, the next day.

The older kids had qualms looking at the size of the cart and the stature of the animal. It seemed disproportionate to the number of riders. Discussion on seating arrangement started. Mhaantu being the conductor cum guide, chose to occupy the front seat and insisted that Mhaav be seated next to him. The arrangement was justified because Mhaav was a good prompter and whenever Mhaantu stumbled while delivering the commentary, her input was of vital importance to keep the continuity. All the children, ages ranging from 3 to 11, were huddled in the middle. Ambakka occupied the last portion of the cart to prevent the kids from rolling off the moving cart. This also helped to shield them from cop's vigilant eyes as the cart was to carry a load more than the permissible limit.

It was now the turn of the horse to adjust to the heavy weight he was to haul. The horse suddenly stood on his hind legs giving a big jolt to the occupants. Manja wielded the whip, indicating the horse to put on his best behavior. A bit of coaxing and back patting restored confidence in the animal. After a couple of balancing acts, the horse settled himself and pulled the vehicle slowly and steadily.

Mhaantu cleared his throat and commenced the running commentary as the jhatka traversed through the various places. The details were too many and monotonous; In the process, the children missed getting to know many landmarks. Ambakka's alertness would catch the sight of cops stationed at cross-roads. She would quickly tap on the children's heads with her knuckles, signaling them to bend down to avoid the watchful cops. Mhaantu would turn around and give a cautious glance to make sure Ambakka's instructions had been followed. For some unknown reason, there were many cops on the road that day. After a few rounds of knuckle taps and eye signs cautioning danger ahead, the children were so trained, that they bent their heads before receiving any taps. They listened to Mhaantu's commentary with heads hidden in between knees. In short children did more listening than seeing on the entire trip.

After a long strenuous ride, the party returned home tired and hungry. On the verandah, Ajja was resting in his easy chair. As the children entered, Ajja asked them whether it was an enjoyable outing. Ambakka, in her triumphant mood, waxed eloquently about the trip with special emphasis on how they steered clear from cops' eyes. Out of politeness, the older kids were silent and discreetly non-committal. The youngest of the lot patiently waited till his mother (Ambakka) finished her recital. Then with twinkle in his eyes, sharply quipped, "Ajja, we could not see much except Manja's posterior. We have' sprained our necks too." Sometimes, children's remarks are frank and innocent. This was the cutest one I had ever heard.

KONKANI SAMMELAN 2004 – A PROGRESS REPORT

The Executive Committee and the 17 Sub-Committees are working tirelessly to showcase a memorable event for the July 4 weekend in 2004. Even though it is a year away, all volunteers realize an early start will smoothen wrinkles along the way, as we approach the SammELAn date.

The Executive Committee meets every month faithfully, each EC member taking his turn to act host, steering our discussion to reach our goals and fine-tuning our strategy. The Sub-committees meet with their team members in lively discussions planning their strategies to present it to the Executive Committee.

SammELAn 2004 has been approved by the Franchise Tax Board of California as a non-profit entity thus exempting donors in California having to pay taxes on their donations. Approval from the IRS is expected soon. With an IRS approval, Konkanis anywhere in the country will qualify to make a tax-free donation.

We are appealing to each and every Konkani in the USA to mark their calendar for the July 4, 2004 weekend to attend the SammELAn in Los Angeles and enjoy lots of authentic Konkani food, and witness the spectacular show we plan to present.

For up-to-date information, please, visit our website: www.konkani2004.com

Preserving Our Heritage / Promoting Our Youth

The Theme for the Konkani SammeLAn 2004 is "Preserving Our Heritage / Promoting Our Youth".

The logo for the Konkani SammeLAn 2004 symbolically represents passing the light of knowledge, as portrayed by the flame, from the mother’s hand to that of her child. The “OM” represents the all-pervasive auspicious symbol of the Hindu religion. The roots on the palm trees represent our deep cultural heritage that is to be shared with our youth. The scene in the background represents the beauty of the Konkan coastline with the palm trees swaying in the breeze. The boat on the water signifies the migration of Konkanis from India to the United States. The sun represents the dawning of a new and wonderful day similar to our Konkani youth. The entire logo is resting upon a beautiful lotus flower, which is India’s national flower and the symbol of truth, auspiciousness and beauty.

The last quarter’s quiz: A Konkani father had an agricultural property shaped as below. He has four (4) sons and wants to divide the property into identically equal part to each. How does he do?

The following gave the correct solution:

Praveen Kamath, Centreville, VA
Hari Kamat, Fort Wayne, IN
Suresh B. Shenoy, Sugarland, TX
Vasanth K. Bhat, Lake Jackson, TX
Govind Kamath, Austin, TX
 Sudhakara B. Shenoy, Houston, TX
Vindya Bhat, NYC

This Quarter's Quiz

By Krishna Kudva, Alta Loma, CA

Continuing with the Konkani tradition of quizzing, here’s the brainteaser for this quarter. If you can solve this correctly, send it to Khabbar address to have your name published in the next issue.
Fill in the numbers 1 thru 49 in a 7 by 7 square that adds up to 175 on all horizontal rows, all vertical columns and diagonal box lines.

Introduction:

With a view to offer cheer, solace and succor to the downrodden and the sick, inspired by our Master, Pujya Swami Satchidanandaji of Anandashram, we were prompted to set up a temple of service in his name – Satchidananda Institute of Medical Scxiences.

Patients in general, in and around Kanhangad, needing the services of specialized and advanced treatment, have to go to far away cities. Patients who are economically very poor find it all the more difficult to avail of such services. To meet the requirement of all categories it was felt necessary to set up a full fledged multi specialty hospital, not with a commercial ambition but with an ideal to make it a forum of service to offer medical facilities even to the poorest of the poor.

The proposed super specialty intends to have a medical center, diagnostic center for investigation, medical and paramedical teaching, and research in the field of medicine etc. These facilities will be open to all deserving cases irrespective of caste, creed, nationality, religion, and the beneficiaries are the general public only.

Project Details:

Approx. 66,300 Sq. Ft of hospital facility with 200 bed capacity at the cost of Rs. 7.5 crores.
Please patronize the Khabbar advertisers. Khabbar reaches over 1,700 families in North America. The advertisement rates are:
